Investment objective and strategy

Liquidity and income in line with current market rates to the extent consistent with the preservation of capital. Investments limited to types of money market instruments, provided they are denominated in US dollars and have a remaining maturity of 397 days or less. Will be managed in a way to maintain an overall weighted average maturity not to exceed 60 days and a weighted average life of 120 days or less. Will only invest in either securities which have been rated (or whose issuers have been rated) in the highest short-term rating category by a US nationally recognized statistical rating organization or in unrated securities that have been determined by the investment manager or sub-advisor to be of comparable quality.

Investment manager's report

Historically, the money markets don't experience volatility anywhere near that of other asset classes, but they don't like uncertainty any less than their equity and fixed-income brethren. No matter what results Election Day brings, there will be heightened anxiety and many unknowns. What will it mean for much-needed fiscal stimulus, shifts in policy and potential regulations? And as fate-or rather the U.S. Constitution-would have it, national elections run up against year-end, adding unwanted pressure to an already stressful affair. It's nothing cash managers can't handle, and we expect it to abate when we-finally-shut the door on 2020. But 2020 will be with us for quite a while as the world recovers from the heath crisis and economic aftermath. In the financial sphere, we will see continued scrutiny of the money markets. This is unfair, as the Federal Reserve intervened to support the entire financial system, especially both commercial paper and CD primary- and secondary-market trading. The future of the cash-management sector is, of course, not just about the past. Plans to enhance access to it both across the globe and through an expanded window of time through new technology are just some of the positive developments. The shift from the London interbank offered rate (Libor) to the Secured Overnight Financing Rate (SOFR), while rocky, is progressing and will leave the industry with a stronger, more reliable and more trusted system. We expect some measure of fiscal stimulus soon, bringing a wave of Treasury bill issuance to fund stimulus checks, action that could offer relief to short-term rates. Treasury yields ended October with 1-month at 0.08%, 3-month at 0.10%, 6-month at 0.12%, and 12-month at 0.13%. Libor ended October with 1-month at 0.14%, 3-month at 0.22%, 6-month at 0.24% and 12-month at 0.33%.
